Updated Data Center Includes New Features, Improved Functionality

LITTLE ROCK — The Arkansas Department of Education updated its Data Center, which is now more interactive and features four mobile-friendly directory applications.

“We are excited about the launch of the updated Data Center,” said Dr. Eric Saunders, the ADE assistant commissioner for Research and Technology. “We continue to pursue opportunities to provide users with easy access to education information. The updates to the Data Center and applications allow users to access the information they need in a more efficient and effective manner, increasing transparency for schools and the public.”

The ADE Data Center website is a collection of data systems, data tools, and informational reports for educators, parents, policy makers, and the public. The center provides access to official Arkansas Department of Education data that is provided by Arkansas public school districts.

The update includes a revised homepage that is mobile and tablet compatible, as well as four enhanced directory applications. Users can more easily search for ADE employees in the ADE Employee Directory. The School Locator directory lists Local Education Agency address information, including information for education service cooperatives, districts, schools and counties. The enhanced School Personnel Directory includes contact information for coops, districts and schools, and the National Center for Education Statistics ID Directory is a one-stop location for accessing identity numbers for coops, districts and schools. These applications allow users to search by keywords and titles.

The Arkansas K-12 Profile includes statistics about public schools, including the number of districts, schools, students, and teachers. The About Us section provides more information about the agency’s Research and Technology division and staff.

To access the site, go to <https://adedata.arkansas.gov/>. ADE welcomes feedback. Please e-mail comments to the ADE Division of Research and Technology at ADE.RTWEB@Arkansas.Gov.

ADE plans to offer a demonstration for the public and media. The date and time will be announced in the near future.
